SUMMONED

Well Known Man of Cloverport Dies After an Illness of Eighteen Months.

FUNERAL HELD SATURDAY

Wm. H. Mullen died at his home in the west End last Friday. His death was due to a complication of diseases. Mr. Mullen came to Kentucky when he was 10 years of age and settled in Breckenridge county where he had lived up to the time of his death. He had many friends here and was a successful farmer. He was born in Roanoke, Va., Feb. 7, 1832. He married Miss Cassie Sanders in 1867. He is survived by Mrs. Mullen and the following children: Mrs. Jennie McFee, Irvington; Mrs. Henry Yeager, of this city; Mrs. Stella Reynolds, of Marshall, Texas; George Mullen, of this city and Wm. Mullen, of Shawnee, Oklahoma.

The funeral was conducted from the residence. The services were beautifully conducted by the Rev. James T. Lewis. The interment took place in Cloverport cemetery.

CUTS THROAT

WITH PAPER KNIFE

Robert Ridgeway, A Farmer Near West Point Attempts Suicide Chance to Recover.

West Point, Ky., June 8.—(Special)—Robert Ridgeway, a farmer 40 years old living across Salt River from this place, attempted suicide to day by cutting his throat with a paper knife. He severed his windpipe and also came near cutting his jugular vein.

Dr. Brewitt was called in the nick of time and after taking about twenty-five stitches in the man's wounds and stopping the flow of blood he regained consciousness.

Ridgeway has been in ill health for some time and brooding over his health is thought to be the cause for his rash act. Chances are considered good for his recovery. He has a wife and four children and is said to be in easy circumstances.

EDGAR A. FOX DEAD.

The Best Known Sunday School Man in the State—An Expert Worker.

Mr. E. A. Fox, general secretary of the Kentucky Sunday School Association and President of the International Sunday School Secretaries' Association, died at his home in Louisville last Saturday morning.

Nearly six weeks ago he was taken suddenly ill at his office in the Louisville Trust Company building. He was taken in a carriage to his home and a physician was summoned. Mr. Fox grew gradually worse, and three weeks ago, a consultation of physicians was held. Last week hope was practically abandoned and Mr. Fox's elder son, Edgar L. Fox, was called home from Danville, where he is a student. All the members of the family were at the bedside when he died.

Since his removal to Louisville, eleven years ago, Mr. Fox had been connected with the State Sunday School work in Louisville. In that time he had his offices in that city, but his work as general secretary was such that much of his time was spent in traveling about the State.

Three years ago Mr. Fox was a delegate to the International Sunday School Convention in Rome, Italy. While he was abroad he traveled extensively through Europe and took pictures for stereopticon views. Upon his return to the United States he prepared a series of lectures and used the views in connection with delivering them.

He was known throughout the country as a religious worker. His work was of such an exceptionally high character that it commanded the attention and admiration of the International Sunday School workers. Mr. Fox was an expert in his line of labor, and he had a wonderful amount of initiative, power and creative and executive ability. He was the author of several books on Sunday School work, and his texts on the subject are regarded as standards. Mr. Fox was a member of the Breckenridge Baptist church, and many times his unbounded and unobtrusive charities have made the hearts of the recipients glad.

Mr. Fox was well known in this county, where he has done a wonderful work for the Sunday School. He was a devoted and successful worker of his many co-workers in the Sunday School. His remains were buried in Cave Hill Cemetery Monday.

This year the management has spared neither time nor money in obtaining the best performers ever seen on the river.

$25,000

That is The Size of The Company Just Organized in This Town.

They Are Going After Gas And Oil in Large Quantities.

LOOKS GOOD FOR CLOVERPORT.

The Kentucky-Indiana Natural Gas & Oil Company, of Cloverport, has just been incorporated under the laws of Kentucky with a capital of $25,000. This is the company which has recently purchased the local gas plant and which is now engaged in re-equipping the plant. They have over 10,000 acres of land under lease for oil and gas, lying in and around Cloverport and it is their intention to drill several wells this summer both for gas and oil.

Mr. Otto G. Tague, President of the Company, in talking with a representative of the News yesterday said that the Company has ordered new casing for the well at the mill which now has a pressure of over 70 pounds and as soon as this casing arrives and is in place in position they would be in position to serve gas to practically the entire city, at least that portion of which is now piped, and that they expected to lay pipe lines to the hill and other portions of the city this summer and drill new wells so that by next winter Cloverport will undoubtedly be enjoying the old time luxury of natural gas.

Mr. Tague further stated that the main object of the company is to develop enough gas to enable them to pipe it to Owensboro and way points, including Hawesville, Cannelton, Tell City, Lewisport and Rockport; that the only question that was yet to be solved was whether the supply of gas is sufficient to warrant this investment, but that he thought that there is yet to be found the main deposit of gas and that before the summer far advanced his company will have developed one of the greatest gas fields in the entire country. In proof of this he called attention to the long life of the wells which have been drilled and taken care of and stated that he thought the large body of undrilled territory which his company has under lease will provide gas in enormous quantities.

The new company will also make some deep drillings in order that the lower strata may be tested for oil. Both Mr. Tague and his father, Mr. James Tague, who is associated with him, are oil men of many years experience and they both stated with great earnestness that they believe an oil field is inevitable. Mr. Tague called attention to the fact that the latest oil field to be developed in this vicinity is the Oakland City, Ind., and that the pool and that at Princeton, Ind., are the only important extensions of the great Illinois oil fields ever discovered and that Cloverport is only 42 miles from the Oakland City pool and in a direct line with it.

It goes without saying that we wish for the new Company all the good luck and success possible for we know that something of this kind would be the greatest thing that could happen to Cloverport and that the discovery of oil would make our city the most important city in this section of the country. On the other hand the development of what we know is here—the gas field—will do a great deal to help boost the town for a plentiful supply of natural gas we should be in position to get some new manufacturing industries and to make our city more attractive for all concerned.

PRESERVED GINGER.

Some Ways of Using This East Indian Sweet.

Preserved ginger is one of those delicacies which might often be used for culinary purposes than is the case. There are many delightful dishes in connection with which it may suitably be employed, while numerous others into the composition of which it does not actually enter. In themselves perhaps of a somewhat insipid nature, are greatly enhanced in flavor by being served with a dish of preserved ginger or with a ginger flavored sauce. Ginger junket is one of these dishes, and a mighty easy and dainty little dessert it is, to be sure.

GINGER APPLE.

To make the junket slightly warm a pinch of new maida, taking care that it does not get really hot. Blood heat is sufficient. Sweeten to taste, a teaspoonful of powdered sugar being enough for most people, and sprinkle in a pinch of ground ginger. On removing from the fire add a teaspoonful of rennet. Pour into custard cups or into a large glass dish. When firm garnish the top with a few slices of preserved ginger, and with it send to table a dish of the same. A little "ginger" may be introduced into a plain pudding by using the following eggs: Beat the whites of one or two eggs to a very stiff foam, and add a gill of whipped cream, a tablespoonful of chopped ginger and a sufficient quantity of the sirup to flavor strongly. Ginger apples, too, are delicious to serve for luncheon or Sunday evening supper. To make them part and core some good apples and fill the cavity left in the center of each apple with a spoonful of chopped preserved ginger. Stand them in a drop-proof dish and pour over them a strup, either of sugar and water flavored with lemon and with a piece of green ginger cooked in it, or if there is enough of the ginger sirup, this may be used with the addition of a little water. Bake till soft and transparent, but not broken, baking occasionally with the sirup. Serve warm or cold with a little whipped cream garnished with pieces of ginger.

WHEN WOMEN REGISTER.

A Hotel Clerk Explains Why a Blotter Is Necessary.

"Hotel clerks get to be great observers of human nature," said an old hotel "blotter." "During the many hours out of each day that I spend waiting this blotter, I have learned many tricks of their trade which go to prove my statement.

In fact, this clerk here has a peculiar trick of his own which should be known to all who are in the hotel business. He has been an observer he is. If you watch him at work you will find whenever a woman is registering he holds a blotter up to the other names on the page. At first when I noticed it I thought that he was merely holding the blotter in readiness to use it on the newly written name, but when I found that he did it only when a woman was registering my curiosity got the better of me, and I asked the reason.

"Why," said he, "women are the most nervous creatures in the world. I hold up the blotter only to show that I am not watching them write their names and at the same time to keep them from trying to excel the other women writing on the page. If you noticed that I was watching them closely it is a safe bet that they would get nervous and make an awful blotch of their signature or try to do the fancy. On the other hand, if they saw a particularly pretty signature on the next line the chances are that they would try to improve theirs by a flourish or two, which generally means a choice blot to be scratched out by yours truly."

"I decided to test his theory by looking over a woman's shoulder while she registered. The result was just what he said it would be."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Gretta Green.

Gretta Green is in Scotland, just "over the border," where marriages used to be performed according to the law of Scotland. The ceremony was blinding performed by a layman in the simplest form, when, being registered, the parties, in the presence of witnesses, were declared man and wife. The first nervous who had been strange unions was George Scott, who was "the unlabeled ministry" about the year 1750.

LEPROSY.

After One Ravage the Disease May Lie Dormant For Years.

The leper, the outcast of the world, is far better off than the leper who lies in hiding outside. Such a leper is a lonely outcast, living in constant dread of discovery and shame, and surely rotting away. The action of leprosy is not steady. It lays hold of its victim, commits a ravage and then lies dormant for an indeterminate period. It may not commit another ravage for five years or ten years or forty years, and the patient may enjoy uninterrupted good health. Here, however, do these first ravages cause of themselves. The skilled surgeon is required, and the skilled surgeon cannot be called in for the leper who is in hiding. For instance, the first ravage may take the form of a perforating ulcer in the sole of the foot. When the bone is reached necrosis sets in. If the leper is in hiding he cannot be operated upon, the necrosis will continue to eat its way up the bone of the leg, and in a brief and horrible time that leper will die of gangrene or some other terrible complication. On the other hand, if that same leper is in Molekai the surgeon will operate upon the foot, remove the ulcer, cleanse the bone and put a complete stop to that particular ravage of the disease. A month after the operation the leper will be out riding on horseback, running foot races, swimming in the breakers or climbing the rocky sides of the valleys for mountain apples. And, as has been stated before, the disease, lying dormant, may not again attack him for five, ten or forty years.—Jack London in Contemporary Review.

GOOD NEWS.

Many Cloverport Readers Have Heard It And Profited Thereby.

"Good news travels fast," and the thousands of bad back sufferers in Cloverport are glad to learn that prompt relief is within their reach. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Dean's Kidney Pills. Thousands upon thousands of people are telling the good news of their experience with the Old Quaker Remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Mrs. Chas. Eganman, (Central Ave., Elizabethtown, Ky., says: "On April 8, 1905, my husband recommended Dean's Kidney Pills in my behalf stating that they had been of great value to me in relieving pains from my back and other difficulties arising from disordered kidneys. I can now add that during the four years which have since elapsed, I have used the remedy on several occasions when suffering from acute attacks of backache and it has never failed to help me. A number of persons seeing my statement in the paper, have called upon me and I have always told them that Dean's Kidney Pills are an excellent remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Water-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N.Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Dean's—and take no other.

WHAT MRS. GILMAN SAYS.

The Average Woman is "Petty" in Daily Life.

I read an article by Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, entitled "Woman the Enigma," and a woman recently who kindly sent me a copy of her New York daily. Mrs. Gilman is always standing up for woman and sincerely so; but, as in this article, she often cries down the "house service" and puts the wider out in the world life above it. She says:

"The average woman in daily life is petty and personal to the last degree. Yes, and what is her daily life? Does it involve the consideration of large affairs, the broadening complex of world business? Hardly. It consists in an endless repetition of the smallest round of duties, in the narrowest personal relation. The universal profession of women, house service, is accountable for her pettiness."

What would become of our homes if all the women could be fortunate (5) enough to be so immediately and completely of world largeness? There is a very important field of usefulness still for the homemaker, and it devolves upon her not to allow her work to transpire over her and to keep the dome of pettiness under subjection. Happily there are many homemakers who do not regard their part as the world's betterment as petty in ever so small a degree.

If the homemaker is not too bigoted to regard her part of caring for the male members of her house as important, the caring for her children as the thing nearest her heart, and even the smallness of the work as her contribution to the greater development of the race, I fear her influence out in the great outside world referred to would be small indeed.

Personally I prefer the distinction of being "the power behind the throne." Every one knows that clear thinking and sound judgment depend largely upon a good digestion. If every homemaker could make sure of developing sturdy children, reserve power and strength for the breadwinning, and along with that produce an air of ease and comfort in the home which would counteract the trials of the day, making the day a thing of peace and content, what reasonable judge could call such a life petty?

*Instead of crying down "house service" let us try to cultivate greater feeling of pride in our service.

GIFT OF LANGUAGE.

Advantages of the Man Who is Able to Talk Well.

There is no other one thing which enables us to make so good an impression, especially upon those who do not know us thoroughly, as the ability to converse well. An man who can talk well, who has the art of putting things in an attractive way, who can interest others immediately by his power of speech, has a very great advantage over one who may know more than he, but who cannot express himself with ease or eloquence.

You may be a good singer, a fine artist, you may have a great many accomplishments which people occasionally see or enjoy, you may have a very beautiful home and a lot of property, which comparatively few people ever know about, but if you are a good converser every one you meet recognizes and appreciates your art. Everybody you converse with feels the influence of your skill and charm.

In other words, there is no accomplishment, no attainment, which you can use so constantly and effectively which will give so much pleasure to your friends as fine conversation. There is no doubt that the gift of language was intended to be a much greater accomplishment than the majority of us have ever made of it.—Orison Sweet Marden in Success Magazine.

PAPER AND CANVAS.

An Anecdote of Turner, the Great Landscape Painter.

In a book entitled "Stories of the English Artists" H. Davies and C. Hunt tell an interesting anecdote of Turner, the great landscape painter. He disliked to part with his pictures and when he sold one invariably wrote a book of dejection and oppression. If a friend asked him what was the matter he would sorrowfully explain, "I've lost one of my children this week."

Once a rich Birmingham manufacturer, Gillett by name, introduced himself to the painter and stated that he had come to buy.

"Don't want to sell" or some such people always refuse to be the answer. The manufacturer then drew from his pocket a bundle of banknotes, about £5,000 worth.

"Here paper," observed Turner, with grim humor, a little softened, however, and evidently enjoying the joke. "To be bartered for more canvas." replied the persistent Gillett, waving his hand at the "Banking of Chance" and its companions.

This tone of cool depreciation seemed to have a happy effect, and finally Gillett departed with some £5,000 worth of Turner's pictures.

A Composer's Blunder.

Some years ago the following apologetic explanation for a composer's blunder appeared in a leading weekly literary journal published in London: "In our last number, as we discovered unfortunately too late for correction, we announced that Mr. John Stuart Mill's inaugural address lately delivered before the University of St. Andrews had since been republished by him in the form of a five shilling elephant." Even the most ardent believers in Mr. Mill's powers among our readers will probably have received this announcement with some incredulity. The fact is that by an error of the press the word "elephant" was substituted for "pamphlet" and the mistake, although the proof was read and reread, unthinkingly escaped the correctors' eyes."

To Fresh Eyes.

Willie, accompanied by his father, was visiting a circus and menagerie. "Oh, papa," the boy exclaimed as they passed before an elephant, "look at the big boy with his horns in his mouth eating hay with his tail!"—Christian Register.

If YOU ever find happiness by hunting for it you will find it, as the old woman did her spectacles, safe on her own nose all the time.—Josh Billings.

THE END APPROACHING.

It is apparent that the debate on the tariff bill in the Senate is approaching rapidly its end. Washington has ceased to be a pleasant place of residence. The Senators are showing unmistakable signs of irritation and loss of temper. The nerves of everybody in the Capitol are in constant vibration. Oratory becomes a task and not a pleasant pastime for the orator.

Summer resorts, Europe and the summer school platforms await the completion of the legislative work, and their calls become sweeter and more insistent as the mercury climbs in the tubes along the Potomac. Families have a word or so to say. The children must be got into the country. Schools are closing, and the young folks must be looked after while they recuperate from their severe labors at the desk and under the midnight electric globe. It is high time to be off from Washington.

What the manufacturers, the merchants, the traders have not been able to do, the weather clerk will accomplish. He will force through a tariff measure, write it on the books and send the members of Congress back to their homes, where the whole business community devoutly wishes them to be.—New York Sun.

GOOD ROADS IN BRECKENRIDGE.

The Kentucky Good Roads Convention has issued a circular letter calling attention to the fact that the Bosworth-Wyatt good roads amendment to the Constitution of Kentucky will be submitted to a vote of the people at the next November election.

The amendment, if adopted, will give the county the power to issue bonds and levy taxes for the building of county roads. It would prepare the way for a general improvement of the roads in all of the counties of Kentucky.

The good roads work in Breckenridge county has just fairly begun. Our people are just beginning to realize that good roads are the most important factor in the prosperity of its citizens. What we need is more money to carry on the good work. This amendment will give us a chance to sell bonds and secure money at a low rate of interest to build good metal roads, which are the only roads for this county.

Wheat, corn and tobacco are all reported in fine condition, and above the average. Wheat, which was thought two weeks ago to be almost a failure, has developed wonderfully and will be near an average crop. All crops are looking thrifty, clear of weeds and in fine growing condition. Things look prosperous for the farmers.

The tobacco crop is about all set in this county. Everybody says it is a bumper crop too. What the farmers want to do now is to bump their heads together for a bumper price. If they don't do it, they ought to be bumped with a good big bumper—one that will raise a good big knot on their craniums.

The Hawesville Clarion says: "Dick Owen is the logical candidate for the State Senate." We agree with the Clarion. And he is the only man who can carry the Democrats to victory in Breckenridge county. Some Democrats might paste this in their hat and watch our prediction.

Millers in Owensboro are offering $1 and $1.10 for new wheat. The $1.10 price is for delivery in ten days after cutting.

Howdy! howdy! howdy! Why not get into the Shriner spirit.

CATARRH DESTROYED MY APPETITE.

PERUNA rarely fails to restore the appetite. Immediately upon beginning the use of Peruna patients begin to eat and digest. This is the universal testimony, coming from all parts of the civilized world.
Catarrh is a very frequent cause of loss of appetite and disturbed digestion. The beneficial influence of Peruna on catarrh completely restores the appetite in such cases.
To prod the digestive organs with medicines that are merely stimulants is a poor way to remedy such cases.

*"I am now cured and cheerful in spirit, all through the agency of Peruna, which has cured me effectually and restored my appetite."
"My only regret is that I did not use Peruna sooner and I would have avoided all my previous suffering and misery."
—Mr. Joseph H. Conlan.*

Removed Catarrh, Restored Appetite.

Mr. Joseph H. Conlan, 487 7th Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: "I suffered from catarrh which completely destroyed my appetite and weakened my entire system.
"I am now cured and cheerful in spirit, all through the agency of Peruna, which has cured me effectually and restored my appetite.
"My only regret is that I did not use Peruna sooner and I would have avoided all my previous suffering and misery."

Torpid Liver, Stomach Trouble.
Mr. James O'Byrne, 628 Madison St., Toledo, Kas., conductor Santa Fe Railway and member Order of Railway Conductors, writes: "I suffered with a torpid liver and stomach trouble, which made my complexion very sallow, and I felt miserable and tired all the time.
"An aunt wrote me that she was taking Peruna with such good results that she advised me to try it, and I finally bought a bottle, although I disliked to take patent medicines.
"However, I found Peruna very agreeable to take, and effective, as I felt better in a week. I took only five bottles in all and I found that was all I needed.
"I am most grateful to you for what your medicine has done for me."

Dysentery Entirely Relieved.
Mr. N. Casey, Leamington, Ill., writes: "Two weeks after beginning your treatment I was well. I used nine bottles of Peruna. My case was bowel trouble or dysentery.
"I also tried Peruna for a cough, according to directions, and it exceeds any cough syrup I ever used.
"I wish every one afflicted would give Peruna a trial."

Peruna as a Tonic.
Capt. B. R. Smith, Greenboro, Ga., writes: "After using several bottles of Peruna I can recommend it as one of the best catarrh medicines on the market. As a tonic it has no equal.
"Peruna is all that is claimed for it."

Catarrh of Stomach.
Mr. Henry Neely, First Lieutenant, Co. "F," 5th Regiment, O. V. I., Box 623, Trenton, Mo., writes: "I suffered for years with catarrh of the stomach. Seeing an advertisement of Peruna, I bought a bottle and every dose made me feel better. Seven bottles completely cured me."

turned off by a machine, but is doing very nicely at present.
Mrs. James Bolin spent Thursday in the city on a shopping tour.
Dr. and Mrs. Frank Hook and little daughter, Mary Franklin, left last week for an indefinite visit to Mrs. Hook's parents, Mr. and Mrs. DeJarnett.

The Logical Candidate.
The official and formal announcement of Senator R. W. Owen for reelection will be found in this issue. The Senator and the record he has made during his first term are each well-known to the people. Both he and his friends are insisting that he is the logical candidate and that in asking for a second term is not only a democratic custom, but that such would not strain the rule of rotation in this position. He has been called upon by the party machinery of Hancock county to make the race, and having been born and raised in Breckenridge county is very close to the democracy there. He has done his full duty as he saw it in the Kentucky Senate, and he is now certainly better equipped than ever to serve the people. He will rally a strong support about him, it matters not who may oppose, and he and his friends claim that he cannot be defeated.—Hancock Clarion.

Chronicles of the Zotwots
From Uncle Remus's—The Home Magazine for April
THE UNKIND MAIDEN LADY
Verse and Picture by R. J. DEAN.
This maiden lady old
A neighbor's child upon her knee.
A Zotow, quick as snap,
Scrambled up into her lap.
And snuggled for hours so peacefully
That the lady grew tired
And almost expired—
But now she's as kind as can be!
P. S. And now
Now, the Jay-fowl neter does forget
The things the Zotwots do,
For the Jay-fowl is the Zotwots' pet,
And the Zotwots know it, too.
The Zotwots, as everybody knows, or should know, are an amiable people who come from the land of Aroundabout, and are the especial friends of children. They make it their duty to see that young folks are not imposed upon by grumpy old folks, and in their laudable efforts they are assisted, nobly and quickly, by the Jay-Fowl—the sedate and soulful Jay-Fowl, who is the Zotwots' pet. And he knows it. (See verse for confirmation of this.)

Sad Accident in Kansas.

Langdon, Kansas, May 30, 1909—On Sunday morning J. O. Popojay and three companions left Langdon to have a good time as they called it. They went to Arlington, a little town nine miles east of Langdon on a hard-pan and after "hanking up" on bad whiskey started home. On the return trip the hardpan jacked the track and Popojay was fatally injured, dying at 7 p. m. the same day.

We had thirty-one years of age and leaves a heart-broken Christian mother, a young wife and little child, three brothers, two sisters and a host of friends. The funeral services were conducted at the Christian church, of Langdon. The Minister's text was: "The Wages of Sin is Death." He was buried by the Modern Woodmen. Many hearts are sad over the event.

Cloverport is not the only place that has its sorrows. The writer sympathizes with the bereaved of both Langdon and Cloverport.

HER GREETING.

In Spite of the Old Lady's Care She Managed to Blunder.

The daughter of a certain charming old lady in Washington are frequently much upset by the old social blunders of their parent, whose fallings in this respect are, however, more than offset by her kindliness of manner.

Among the callers to the house of this family was a Mrs. Farrell, who, after some years of widowhood, again married, this time becoming the wife of an Mr. Meggs.

"If you love us, mother," said one of the girls when the newly married lady's card had been brought in one afternoon shortly after the completion of the honeymoon, "don't make the mistake of calling her Mrs. Farrell."

The mother solemnly promised to commit no faux pas and as she went downstairs was heard to repeat to herself, "Meggs—Meggs—Meggs—not Farrell."

At the conclusion of the call the old lady was met at the head of the stairs by the daughter, who at once observed an ominous expression of despondency on the old lady's face.

"Oh, mother," she exclaimed, "surely you didn't."

"No, Clara," replied the mother emphatically, "I didn't. I was so careful to call her Mrs. Meggs all the time."

"Well, what's the trouble, then?"

"Oh, dear," murmured the kindly old lady, as she sank into a chair, "I was awful of me, I know. When I greeted her I said: I am glad to see you, Mrs. Meggs. How is Mr. Farrell?"—Harper's Weekly.

"No, Clara," replied the mother emphatically, "I didn't. I was so careful to call her Mrs. Meggs all the time."

"Well, what's the trouble, then?"

"Oh, dear," murmured the kindly old lady, as she sank into a chair, "I was awful of me, I know. When I greeted her I said: I am glad to see you, Mrs. Meggs. How is Mr. Farrell?"—Harper's Weekly.

Mrs. Wm. Mullen and children.

The Balloons.

Three of the balloons from Indianapolis sailed around over Gardfield Saturday morning, had a word with the people of that town and dropped a letter for the post office. At McQuady two were sighted but were so high up nothing could be seen but the outlines. At Gardfield the occupants inquired about the location, name of town and county and seemed to be in fine spirit. They were sailing south.

POLLY of the CIRCUS

By MARGARET MAYO

Copyright, 1908, by Dodd, Mead and Company

In, name as me," Hasty answered innocently. "You'd better take Hasty into the kitchen," said Douglas to Mandy, with a dry smile. "He's talking too much for a wounded man."

Mandy disappeared with the disgraced Hasty, advising him, with fine scorn, to get to the tiger, and to walk no more. The deacon gazed at each other with lips closed tightly. Elverson's behavior was beyond their power of expression. Miss Perkins turned to the pastor as though he were somehow to blame for the deacon's buckling, but before she could find words to argue the point the timid little deacon appeared in the doorway, utterly unconscious of the scene when he had been taken care of by Hasty. He glanced nervously from one set face to the other, then coughed behind his hat.

"We're all very much interested in the circus," said Douglas. "Can't you tell us about it?"

"I just went into the lot to look for my son," stammered the deacon. "I feared Peter had strayed."

"Why, deacon?" said Mrs. Willoughby. "I just stopped by your house and saw Mrs. Elverson putting Peter to bed."

The deacon was saved from further embarrassment by an exclamation from Julia, who had stayed at the window. "Oh, look; something has happened!" she cried. "There's a crowd. They are coming this way."

Douglas crossed quickly to Julia's side and saw an excited mob collecting before the entrance to the main building. He had time to discover no more before Mandy burst in at the door, panting with excitement and rolling her large, white rimmed eyes.

"John, a little circus girl done fall off her horse!" she cried. "Hasty say can you bring her in here?"

"Of course," said Douglas, hurrying outside.

There were horrified exclamations from the women, who were aghast at the idea of a circus rider in the paragon. In their helpless indignation they turned upon the little deacon, feeling intuitively that he was enjoying the drama. Elverson was retreating toward the door when he was suddenly thrust aside by Douglas.

In the young pastor's arms was a white, spangled burden of humanity, his slender arm hung limply over his shoulder. The silk stocking was torn from one bruised ankle; her half left face, smiling, was turned toward the friendly glances of the women. Douglas passed out of sight up the stairway without looking to the right or left, followed by the deacon.

Mandy reached the front door in time to push back a crowd of intruders. She bared herself to the door when it was thrust open by Jim.

"Where is she?" he demanded.

"Go way fun here!" cried Mandy as she flew unconsciously sought the stairs.

Jim followed the direction of her glance and clanked the steps at a bound. Mandy pursued him, muttering angrily. The deacon, who was about to follow when a grim reminder from Miss Perkins brought him around, and he made for the door instead. He stopped back on the stairs, standing on the threshold was a clown in his grotesque makeup. His white clothes were partially concealed by a thin traveling gown, and he wore a small button. In one hand he carried a small leather satchel. In the other a girl's sailor hat. A little cat was thrown across his arm. The glances of the boy hiding behind his mother's skirt were the only greetings received by the trembling old man in the doorway.

He glanced uncertainly from one unfriendly face to the other, waiting for a word of invitation to enter, but none came.

"Excuse me," he said. "I just brought some of her little things. She's better put on her coat when she goes out. It's getting kinder chilly."

He looked again at the blank faces. Still not a word. He stepped forward, trembling with anxiety. A sudden fear clutched at his heart, the anxiety of his face turned to the red painted lips began to quiver.

"It ain't it ain't that, is it?" he faltered, with unuttered the word that filled him with horror.

Even Miss Perkins was momentarily touched by the anguish in the old

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrhs of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go out in the middle of the night, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest test because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles. You can have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

man's voice. "I guess you will find the person you are looking for up my son," stammered the deacon. "I feared Peter had strayed."

"Why, deacon?" said Mrs. Willoughby. "I just stopped by your house and saw Mrs. Elverson putting Peter to bed."

"It ain't it ain't that, is it?" he faltered, with unuttered the word that filled him with horror.

Even Miss Perkins was momentarily touched by the anguish in the old seeing desperation written on their faces.

"There!" They looked at him incredulously. And this was a personal. "Where are her parents?" the doctor asked, looking at Jim and Toby.

"She ain't got no parents," Toby said. "I ain't got no parents either."

"Oh, I see," said the doctor. "Well, one of you'd better stay here until she can be moved."

"That's the trouble. We can't," said Toby, hanging his head. "You see, sir, circus folks is like soldiers. No matter what happens, the show has to go on, an' we got to be in our places."

"Oh, I see," said the doctor. "It is a fortunate thing that Mr. Douglas can manage this. Our town hospital burned down a few months ago, and we've been rather puzzled as to what to do with such cases."

He took his leave, with a cheery "Good night," and a promise to look in upon the little tent later. Jim shuffled awkwardly toward the pastor.

"It's mighty good of you to do this," he mumbled, "but she ain't got to be no charity patient. Me an' Toby is goin' to look after her keep."

"Her wants will be very few," Douglas answered kindly. "You needn't trouble about that."

"I mean it," said Jim savagely. He met Douglas' glance of surprise with a determined look, for he feared that his chance of being useful to Polly might be slipping out of his life.

"You mustn't mind Jim," the clown pleaded at the pastor's elbow. "You see, you get some folks different from others, an' it always kinder makes him savage."

"Oh, that's all right," Douglas answered quickly. His own life had been so lonely that he could understand the selfish yearning in the big man's heart. "You must do what you think best about these things. Mandy and I will look after the rest."

Jim hung his head, feeling somehow that the pastor had seen straight into his heart and discovered his petty weakness. He was about to turn toward the door when it was thrown open by Barker.

"Where is she?" shouted the manager, looking from one to the other.

"She can't come," said Jim in a low, steady voice, for he saw the stern opposition with which Barker would meet the announcement.

"Can't come?" shrieked Barker. "Of course she'll come. Can't get along without her. She's got to come."

He looked at Jim, who remained silent and firm. "Why ain't she comin'?" he asked, feeling himself already defeated.

"She's hurt bad," was Jim's laconic reply.

"The devil she is!" said Barker, looking at Douglas for confirmation.

"Is that right?"

"She won't be able to travel for some time," said Douglas.

"Mr. Barker is our manager," Toby explained as he edged his way to the pastor's side.

"Some time?" Barker looked at Douglas as though he were to blame for their misfortune. "Well, you just bet she will," he declared menacingly.

"See here, Barker, don't you talk to him like that," said Jim, facing the manager. "He's a darned square, even if he is a parson. Barker turned away. He was not a bad hearted man, but he was irritated and upset at losing the star feature of his bill.

"Ain't this my doggedest luck?" he muttered to himself as his eye again traveled to the boss circusman. "You get out here, Jim," he shouted, "an' start them wagons. The show's got to go on. Pull or no pull!"

He turned with his hand on the doorknob and jerked out a grudging thanks to the pastor. "It's all fixed good of you to take her in," he said. "I'm tough to love her. Good night!" He banged the door and clattered down the steps.

Jim waited. He was trying to find words in which to tell his gratitude. He crossed the room and took the big fellow's hand.

"Much obliged," Jim answered gruffly. "It was his only polite phrase, and he had taught Polly to say it. Douglas waited until Jim had passed down the steps, then turned to Toby, who still lingered near the table.

"You'll tell her how it was me an' Jim had to leave her without sayin' goodby, won't you, sir?" Toby pleaded.

"Yes, indeed," Douglas promised.

"I'll jes' put this little bit of money into her satchel." He picked up the little brown bag that was to have been Jim's birthday gift. "Me an' Toby will be sendin' her home soon."

"You're going to miss her, I'm afraid," Douglas said, feeling an irresistible desire to gain the old man's confidence.

"Lord bless you, yes, sir!" Toby answered, turning upon him eagerly. "Me an' Jim has been father an' mother an' jes' about everything to that little one. She wasn't much bigger a handful of peanuts when we begun a-worryin' about her."

"Well, Mandy will do the worryin' now," Douglas laughed. "She's been dyin' for a chance to mother some body all along. Why, she even tried it on me."

"I noticed as how some of those church people seemed to look kinder queer at us," said Toby, "an' I been a-wonderin' if mebbe they might feel the same about her."

"They're all right!" Douglas assured him. "They'll be her friends in no time."

"She's fit for me, sir," Toby pleaded. "She's good, clean into the middle of her heart."

"I'm sure of it," Douglas answered.
